

Love Bite

By

Lewis Allan Gibson-Grainger

EXT. RUN DOWN TOWN

The streets are empty, sounds of gunfire, groans and screaming are heard and abruptly cut off.

On the ground a discarded newspaper covered in blood reads "Happy Valentine's Day: RUN FOR YOUR LIVES" and details further relating to a Zombie Apocalypse.

EXT. ABANDONED HOME

Blood splashes the door, distinctive moaning emanates from the house.

INT. ABANDONED HOME

A half closed door, a figure can be seen stumbling through the bathroom, lights flickering. The door slowly creaks open revealing a blood splattered zombie. Suddenly the creature rears up and we see it's full reflection in the mirror.

JANE

GRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRR.....

Jane pauses and slowly raises ruby red lipstick to her face and draws an approximation of a smile on her face.

INT. JACK'S HOME

Zombie Jack stumbles from his bed, a human arm poking from the sheets, which promptly falls to the floor, severed at the elbow.

Jack attempts to get dressed trying the pants on over his head.

INT. JANE'S HOME

Jane has curling tongs in her hair and sits calmly moaning as her hair begins to smoke.

INT. JACK'S HOME

Jack (fully and smartly dressed) carrying a picnic basket thumps repeatedly into the front door trying to get through.

INT. JANE'S HOME

Jane looks down at a pair of blood splattered high heels she is wearing, then stands and with a crunch, drops slightly on the left. She glances down and then continues walking.

EXT. RUN DOWN TOWN

Jack walks down the high street, a dead bouquet held in his hand. He meets with Jane and they briefly moan at each other before heading to the beach.

EXT. THE BEACH

At the beach a deeply stained blanket is stretched out on the sand, a human being tied to a stake in the centre. He stares in wonder at the Zombies. Jack drops the picnic basket on the floor, it starts to shake and groan but stops when Jack kicks it.

Jack and Jane pour some lumpy liquid from a broken wine bottle. Their glasses shatter when they attempt to chink them together. They descend down on the human who now decides to scream, pausing after the screams have stopped to stare blankly at each others gore covered faces. They attempt to kiss but succeed in only headbutting each other.

Finally as the sun begins to set, they stare out at the sea hands held. Jack opens the picnic basket, inside a Zombie head shakes and groans. Jack reaches down and pulls something out. It is a finger and on it a diamond ring, he pulls off the finger, almost throws it away but decides instead to eat it. And then turns to Jane as the sun finally sets.

CREDITS

Following the credits a single line reads: Love Never Dies.